Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 06 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Warm on Monday, fine in south, showers developing in north.

This Evening and Tonight:
Dry and warm with clear spells overnight for most. Western areas may see a few heavy showers linger for a time, gradually fading to leave areas of cloud in their wake that may drift eastwards later. Minimum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Monday:
A fine day with sunshine in the south. Becoming increasingly warm generally, with these conditions helping heavy showers develop in some northern areas, perhaps locally prolonged and thundery with hail. Maximum temperature 24 deg C (75 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Mainly fine and rather warm, with sunny spells developing after some cloudier starts. Probably more cloud around after midweek, although some brighter spells still likely. Winds remaining light.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.